VOLUME XLVII

GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, JANUARY 1, 1925

OSCAR P. SCHUMANN, Editor and Proprietor

NUMBER 1

Items Concerning Michigan

(By Ed A. Nowack)

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 1.—A new industry is destined for the state of Michigan. Planting and raising Christmas trees for commercial purposes is being tried out. With the sentiment for conservation of the forests growing, and the stern attitude of the state in prosecuting thefts of Christmas trees from state owned lands, ingenious men, seeing the great returns from a Christmas tree farm on a large scale, are launching the venture.

Swamp lands in Michigan will raise from 15,000 to 20,000 spruce and balsam per acre, which, after five years' growth from seedlings, are available for marketing. Thousands of acres of swamp and low lands in Michigan are available for the proposed industry. Under present conditions the grower and gatherer of Christmas trees receives from 10 to 50 cents per tree. The cost of harvesting the trees is virtually nothing. One slash of the axe and the tree is harvested. An acre of spruce and balsam, planted scientifically so it will produce around 15,000 trees, would bring big returns at the end of a five year period. If the crop was replanted as it was cut, and some of the trees allowed to attain a ten to 15 years' growth—then the trees will sell at from $1.50 to $2.00—the investment would be worth while.

Taking cash discounts on state purchases appears to be paying big. The first 10 months of 1924 totaled about four times the total for all of 1921. In that year the state saved $70,000. In 1922 there was $160,000 saved; 1923 saw $177,000 saved; 10 months of 1924 witnessed $241,206.66 roll in. That's what comes of attention to detail, administered by an old time newspaper man, Fred Henry, now secretary of the administration board.

A plain manila colored envelope was shown into the Michigan capitol the other day. One could carry it in an inner pocket without a bit of inconvenience. Yet it held the great fortune of $10,000,000—collected put up by insurance companies operating in Michigan. The bonds were government securities.

The state will refuse to go to the expense of keeping highways open in the winter time for bus and truck operators' benefit, according to Sherman T. Handy, chairman of the Public Utilities commission. Bus men feel the state should spend this money on road maintenance and on their license fees. An effort of truck operators to compel the state to give them the right to carry heavy loads on gravel roads during the spring will be launched in the legislature.

Village of Parma, partly in Sandstone township, Jackson county, has withdrawn suit against the township to force it to spend its share in village street improvements. Settlement was effected.

Next season the state ferries operating at Mackinaw City and St. Ignace will load at their new docks. For the season of 1924 the ferries took in $118,879.10. Reports from all sections indicate the ferries gave satisfaction. The last week of service for the ferries, when, as a matter of fact, but the Mackinaw City operating, saw a total of $436.50 taken in. One hundred thirty-eight cars of all types and 95 passengers were handled.

For the week ending Dec. 11, 1924, the following classes of roads showed on the state construction report: Assessment district, 35,760 miles, all classes; federal aid, 282,085, all classes; state trunk line, 516,515 miles, all classes; pavement only, 457,140 miles; grand total, 834,316 miles.

Marquette county is maintaining auto traffic in spite of snow drifts on a 60 mile route. Two tractors and plows are used and shifts of three men each per plow is employed.

The proposed Flint river cut-off drain, to benefit several counties may cost one million. Commissioner Dean of Shiawassee county thinks the preliminary survey will cost $10,000.

The state is being sued for $2,727 by a contractor on Winder Woodward avenue, near Pontiac, because he was delayed in his work due to the state's failure to procure a right of way.

BEGINS DUTIES OF SHERIFF.
Jess Bobenmoyer begins his duty as sheriff of Crawford county January 1st, succeeding Peter F. Jorgenson whose term of office expires at that time.

Mr. Bobenmoyer reports the appointment of Frank May as under-sheriff. We are confident that with these two gentlemen at the head of the executive department of our county government, and with the backing of the public, that Crawford county is due for a clean, square administration. Mr. Bobenmoyer states that he was elected by the voters of good government and he intends to give it to them if it is possible for him to do so.

Judging from a conversation had with the new sheriff we conclude that he intends to look at his duties with a broad vision and not with the idea of arresting every petty offender but rather with the view of gaining respect for the law and more careful observance.

Albert Lewis of Frederic has been selected as one of the deputies, and others will be appointed in due time. At present Mr. Bobenmoyer is looking for a suitable deputy for the South Side of the town.

If the people desire good service on the part of the officers, we believe they can get it by extending to them their faithful confidence and backing.

GRAYLING 31 TO DAY CITY 15

Local Quintette Take Fast Game from Visitors.

Saturday night the American Legion basket ball team met and defeated the crack Community Service team of Bay City, 31 to 15 in the fastest and best played game seen on the local court so far this season.

The first half was fast and fought throughout. Grayling led at half time by only three points, the score being 13 to 10. The second half was even faster and the teamwork and passing of the locals was the best of the year.

Captain "Mike" Schweinsberg was the star of the visitors. It was his fast floor work that kept Bay City in the running all through the first half. Elliott, right forward, was the high scorer for Bay City with five points.

Landsberg with five field goals led the Legion quintette in scoring. Smith playing guard scored four field goals and had his forward in check, allowing him only one goal. The Grayling team showed marked improvement over the previous game and are working hard to perfect their short pass game which won so many games for them in the past few seasons.

Summary:
Bay City 15, Grayling 31.
Elliott, R.F. Reynolds, Skwington, L.F. Brown, Jankowick, C. Milnes, Grove, L.G. Smith, Schweinsberg, R.G. McNehe.

Score 1st half, Bay City 10, Grayling 13.
Field goals, Bay City 15; Grayling 21.
Final score, Elliott 2, Skwington 1, Jankowick 1, Landsberg 5, Milnes 1, Johnson 2, Smith 4, McPhee 1. Free throws, Bay City 3 in 7, Grayling 4 in 3.

Substitutions, Smith for Elliott, Amburn for Grove, Chamberlin for Reynolds, Landsberg for Brown, Johnson for Milnes, Brown for Johnson, Milnes for McPhee, Reynolds for Chamberlin.

Referee, B. E. Smith.
Scorer, A. Ferris; timer, Dell Weir.

Our next game will be played here next Monday night with the Silver Greys, Bay City's professional team. This team is the only team in Michigan that plays professional rules. They are coming here for their first away from home game and will be somewhat handicapped on account of court having "out of bounds" on all sides, however they can easily adapt themselves to any kind of court and score feel at home. Their line-up includes several stars, including, Duval, Hapnall, Schwartz, Lentz and McDonald.

The team is going good and is working hard to iron out some of their rough places. Each player gave a good account of himself in the last games and seemed eager to see the team win rather than to star alone.

R. GILLET HEADS BOARD OF TRADE

DIRECTORS ELECT NEW OFFICERS TUESDAY NIGHT.

Directors of the Grayling Board of Trade selected for president of the board for the fiscal year, Robert H. Gillett, secretary and manager of the Grayling Power and Ice Plant Co. T. P. Peterson, secretary of the Grayling Box Co. was elected vice president, and B. E. Smith re-elected secretary and treasurer.

For the past year Mr. Gillett was vice president and has been an active worker on the board and his selection to the new honors as president seems to meet with the hearty accord of the members.

T. P. Peterson was at one time president of Grayling Board of Trade and is deeply interested in its operations. B. E. Smith, who is superintendent of Grayling schools, has been secretary-treasurer of the board for the past two years and is a good one. The board is lucky to have such a capable official.

M. A. Bates, the retiring president took the office a year ago with a heavy debt hanging over it and conditions not very inspiring. He did probably as well as anyone could do under the circumstances, but felt that he did not care to assume the duties another term.

OFFERS 2 PLANS FOR WATER WORKS

The Water Works problem is a matter of utmost importance, and the main question is how best to handle it.

It would seem that in all fairness to everybody concerned that two propositions should be submitted to the tax payers.

Let a committee appointed by the council meet with a representative of the Salling-Hanson Company and agree on a price to be paid for the mains now on our streets, then receive figures on what the approximate cost will be to lay additional mains and correct the faults of the present ones. Also agree on a proposition of operating the power plant for a period of three years, then take care of the situation for the next three years and in the mean-time the committee of the council can secure and spread a tax over the next five years and accumulate a fund to cover the cost so that at the end of the three-year period enough money will be on hand so that it will be necessary to bond for only two years to complete the system and in this way it will not be so great a burden on the tax payers as it will to raise the full amount in two years.

The second proposition to be submitted to the tax payers would be for an entire new system such as is now contemplated but the council should secure bonafide bids from responsible contractors giving exact figures of cost of installation before asking the tax payers to vote on raising the money to pay for it and should also inform the public as to the probable cost of operating the plant and an estimate of possible earnings so that the tax payers will know exactly what they are voting for.

It is not a fair proposition to put a matter of so much importance before the voters without giving them all the facts so that they can vote intelligently.

I am not financially interested in the Salling-Hanson Company and have only the same interest in this matter that every other citizen has, but in all fairness they are entitled to some consideration. They have furnished water for this village for over forty years and if they had charged up all of the expense connected with the operation of the plant on the same basis as a municipal plant would have to, they have lost many thousands of dollars and it seems ungrateful to ignore them in this matter as is contemplated.

The people of Grayling have always been noted for their sense of fair play and if given a chance to make their choice, he result that it will, at least, be a feeling of satisfaction and much better community spirit is needed more than at any time in the history of this village and we should all pitch in together for its best interest.

Respectfully,
M. Hanson.

To the Ladies

By ERWIN GREER

(President Green College of Antonine, (five Engineering, Chicago)

It is to be confessed, at the beginning, that my discourse is not directed at all drivers—but at a comparatively small number of motorists with driving experience which should have taught them better, whose handling of their cars leaves, in my opinion, something to be desired. Ladies, don't loil. It is unjust to see even a mere man sprout out behind a steering wheel, but in the case of a woman, the woman who holds herself well, has a way of making a good impression wherever she may be, and this applies equally whether she is driving a car or sitting at a dinner table.

Don't take advantage of the fact that you are a woman, because, though most men drivers will make way for you even when you are in the wrong, they will think the less of you while they do so. And there are some men who will insist upon their "rights" as motor car drivers, should you encounter this last named species there is likely to be a crash.

Don't think about the possible impression you may be making upon other road users. Attend strictly to the business in hand. There still exists in the minds of a good many people an idea that it is no safe for women to drive automobiles. Do your best to destroy this false impression by handling your car with care and consideration for others.

Don't imagine that other drivers will unnecessarily stare at you, if they do, it will not be because they are admiring you, but because they are doubtful of your ability to drive. Show them that you are mistress of the art.

Statistics prove that a woman is a better motor car driver than a man. Suppose you check up all the dumb-bell drivers you see in a week. We'll bet the majority are men.

Don't shove things. Leave that trick to the barber. Good drivers are courteous.

Don't drive carelessly over wet streets. A hole full of water may not mean much to you but to the pedestrian who receives in his face the water ejected from the hole by your tire, it is a matter of moment—damnable moments. Remember the time that you were splattered with mud.

And if you must speed, buy a racing car. These things were built especially for people who have nowhere to go and want to get there in a hurry.

Now pass this little article on to friend husband—that he too may gain and gain driving wisdom, thereby.

Next Week's Article: "How to Keep Down Motor Car Expenses."

Did you get one of the large bargain bills? If not come and get one at the Grayling Mercantile Co's. Store and save money.

Railroad traffic was all out of joint and the telegraph and phone wires nearly out of commission yesterday on account of the storm.

There will be an Epworth League entertainment at the home of Mr. M. A. Bates on Friday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock. All members and prospective members are invited.

A sleigh load of jolly young people

Cottage prayer meetings are being held in the parish of the Presbyterian church this week. To-night Thursday, the meeting will be held at Dr. Palmer's, and at Robert Roblin's tomorrow evening.

Mr. Albert Nelson and Miss Nellie Walker of Grayling were united in marriage on New Year's day at the home of Lowell B. Fox, three miles north of Grayling. Rev. J. Humphrey Fleming was the officiating clergyman. The young people will begin married life on a farm near this village.

A letter from Conrad Dan A. Squires, who has been in Centralia, Washington for the past five years, is going to California to see if he can find a warmer climate, and will give us his new address as soon as located.

The Grayling Social Club gave their second annual Ball at the Opera House last evening. About fifty couples were present, and the dancing began at nine o'clock, the grand march being led by Dr. and Mrs. Stanley N. Insley. The decorations were beautiful and befitting the holiday season, and at a neatly arranged booth the Misses Elsie Salling and Cornelia Meistrup served punch to the merry dancers. Refreshments were served at midnight. Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hartwick, Messrs Melvey and Clark, and Miss Best of Detroit, Misses Rethercut and Johnson of Gaylord and Mrs. C. C. Westcott of Salling.

MICHIGAN'S BEST CROP.
A column article in the Sunday, Dec. 21, Free Press, calling attention to Michigan's most lucrative crop—the trees that are being planted yearly in the National Forest, has attracted considerable notice throughout the state. R. G. Schreck, national forest supervisor, was quoted in the article.

Incidentally he referred to the number of tourists who visit the forest yearly and emphasized the privileges and conveniences which are theirs.

"Do you realize the situation that we are facing, Ellen?" he asked, with deadly gravity. "Do you realize the danger of your insinuation that your telling the simple truth would be construed into testimony against Gibbs?" She looked at him, breathing hard. "I see," she said, in a whisper. "George, I'll put everything out of my mind—I promise you! I'll try to be sensible. But, George—they won't—they can't—"

He did not speak, but his look silenced her. "You want Lizzie, don't you?" she said composedly, after a moment. "I'll send her out. And meanwhile, I'll be packing the baby's things, and send them away directly."

"Excellent!" he said. "Then we can get hold of Lizzie again if we need her."

"Will telephone Aunt Elsie," Ellen added thoughtfully. She went into the nursery where Lizzie had been reading to Tommy and sent the girl out.

Lizzie was downstairs not more than fifteen minutes. Ellen looked fearfully at her face when she came up.

"It wasn't anything," Lizzie said, in a low tone, over her packing. "He just asked me a few questions, and how I knew there was a pistol in that drawer—and whether I had heard anything about Mr. Josselyn and his father fighting—he spoke kind enough, and a young fellow there wrote it down. I said I hadn't been downstairs until after they had their trouble—"

"Listen," said Tommy, rushing in from the other room, and instigating his person into his mother's lap. "Will you tell Aunt Elsie that I can go down on the ice?"

"You be a good boy for Lizzie, dear," Ellen said, kissing him. "And you'll keep him absolutely by himself, Lizzie," she asked. "I don't want him to hear any talk of this." Ellen sighed in sick foreboding. There would be talk enough. She had his luncheon and Lizzie's brought up stairs, and saw them off at one o'clock. Gibbs came up for a moment, looking white, and Tommy gave his parents frantic hugs for good-bye. Ellen breathed easier when the little boy was out of the atmosphere of death and mystery.

CHAPTER XII

"Just tell me simply and fully all about yesterday," said the district attorney pleasantly. Ellen, facing him across the big table in the library, smiled nervously in answer to his encouraging smile. The library seemed full of men, some writing, some watching her. Doan's Cutter was there, and George Latrop. The air was thick with the odor of strong cigars, and also the smell of trays of coffee and sandwiches that had been taken away a short time before.

She began stammering, gaining confidence as she went on. They were all kind to her; they even infused a sort of brightness into the air. Occasionally she was interrupted, but the questions were unexpectedly few and brief.

"Just a minute there, Mrs. Josselyn. About that revolver. You came into the study and found the girl looking at it?"

"She had it in her hand."

"Oh, no, lying idly on the table. She was frightened when I came in. I threw it in the drawer and shut the drawer."

"She didn't go back to that room again?"

"I don't think he said that," she said. "Exactly," Ryan said. "You were excited and frightened by this noise, and naturally you got a vague impression of it." He glanced at a paper before him. "Go on, Mrs. Josselyn, you saw the blow struck?"

"Yes, sir. I saw Mr. Josselyn reach for the paper-cutter, and I screamed, 'I think!'"

"Why did he reach for it? What had he said?"

"He said 'I'll stop you—' Ellen began, and was silent.

"He was terribly excited and angry," Ryan said quietly, not looking at her, and he shouted, 'I'll stop you! What else?'"

Ellen glanced at George. "Why, they were speaking both together—and so fast—she began. "What did he say that made you call out, 'Oh, no, Gibbs!' or 'Oh, don't, Gibbs!'" Ryan asked.

"He said something about a—Lizzie," Ellen stammered. "He said he would—"

"Lizzie was downstairs not more than fifteen minutes. Ellen looked fearfully at her face when she came up."

"It wasn't anything," Lizzie said, in a low tone, over her packing. "He just asked me a few questions, and how I knew there was a pistol in that drawer—and whether I had heard anything about Mr. Josselyn and his father fighting—he spoke kind enough, and a young fellow there wrote it down. "Yes, sir. I saw Mr. Josselyn reach for the paper-cutter, and I screamed, 'I think!'"

"He just asked me a few questions, and how I knew there was a pistol in that drawer—and whether I had heard anything about Mr. Josselyn and his father fighting—he spoke kind enough, and a young fellow there wrote it down. I said I hadn't been downstairs until after they had their trouble—"

"Listen," said Tommy, rushing in from the other room, and instigating his person into his mother's lap. "Will you tell Aunt Elsie that I can go down on the ice?"

"You be a good boy for Lizzie, dear," Ellen said, kissing him. "And you'll keep him absolutely by himself, Lizzie," she asked. "I don't want him to hear any talk of this." Ellen sighed in sick foreboding. There would be talk enough. She had his luncheon and Lizzie's brought up stairs, and saw them off at one o'clock. Gibbs came up for a moment, looking white, and Tommy gave his parents frantic hugs for good-bye. Ellen breathed easier when the little boy was out of the atmosphere of death and mystery.

"I don't think he said that," she said. "Exactly," Ryan said. "You were excited and frightened by this noise, and naturally you got a vague impression of it." He glanced at a paper before him. "Go on, Mrs. Josselyn, you saw the blow struck?"

"Yes, sir. I saw Mr. Josselyn reach for the paper-cutter, and I screamed, 'I think!'"

"Why did he reach for it? What had he said?"

"He said 'I'll stop you—' Ellen began, and was silent.

"He was terribly excited and angry," Ryan said quietly, not looking at her, and he shouted, 'I'll stop you! What else?'"

Ellen glanced at George. "Why, they were speaking both together—and so fast—she began. "What did he say that made you call out, 'Oh, no, Gibbs!' or 'Oh, don't, Gibbs!'" Ryan asked.

"He said something about a—Lizzie," Ellen stammered. "He said he would—"

"Lizzie was downstairs not more than fifteen minutes. Ellen looked fearfully at her face when she came up."

"It wasn't anything," Lizzie said, in a low tone, over her packing. "He just asked me a few questions, and how I knew there was a pistol in that drawer—and whether I had heard anything about Mr. Josselyn and his father fighting—he spoke kind enough, and a young fellow there wrote it down. ## Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't delay! Get a box of Doan's Pills. Give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them, also, by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

MRS. P. MADSON, Spruce St., Grayling, Mich., says: "I had a lameness in the small of my back and bearing-down pains across my kidneys, which made my housework burdensome. All this misery taxed my strength and left me weak and worn out. I was nervous and my kidneys acted far off. After using several boxes of Doan's Pills I was rid of the attack."

H. E. PARKER, prop. notion store, Spruce St., residence Park St., Grayling, Mich., says: "A dull ache through the small of my back was the first sign of kidney trouble in my case. As time passed, my back became lame and sore and I felt tired and worn out. My kidneys were weak and I had to get up two and three times during the night to pass the secretions. After using two boxes of Doan's Pills I was rid of the trouble."

New Idea in Stenciling

The latest development in the art of stenciling is to use a piece of old lace in place of the usual stencil cut from stencel board. The lace gives exceptional decorative results when properly used, especially for the wall panels that are now so popular.

Let Us Introduce

Slim and Blackie are energetic and successful "novelists." They like music, so the other afternoon they went around to hear the concert of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra. They arrived and were very much interested in the "tuning-up" process, asking each other numerous questions about this, that and the other thing. When everything seemed ready, the director entered and mounted his stand.

Now the "Rotor" Hat

"Rotor" hats for both men and women designed to propel their wearers after the manner of the Fletcher sail-less ship are the latest sensation for the winter in Berlin. Says Zeitung Am Mitzen: "He would provide pedestrians with roller skates and send them through the streets without effort, harnessing the wind for their propulsion by means of the revolving cylinder hats turned by a tiny motor within the headpiece."

Claim Columbus Landed on Island in Bahamas

The landing place of Christopher Columbus when he discovered America is on an island now known as Watling island, Watling island, in the Bahamas, is so called after one of the numerous intrepid British mariners who crossed the seas to acquire various lands and luxuries that did not naturally belong to them, Columbus, according to his journal as published by Las Casas, christened the island San Salvador immediately on landing, says the Detroit News.

The island was originally called Guanahani by the Arawak Indians, who inhabited it at the time of Columbus' discovery in 1492. The Arawaks are now extinct, except in certain parts of South America. They were not a fierce race, but pastoral people and fishermen at the time Columbus discovered them. The Caribs, who inhabited Jamaica, were cannibals, making continual war on their Arawak neighbors.

COURSES OFFERED
IN PUBLIC HEALTH

Correspondence School Conducted by Institutions.

Washington.—Correspondence and reading courses in public health have been conducted by seven state departments of health and by six universities in this country in the last two years, according to the United States public health service, which for more than a year has been collecting data on the subject from the executive officers of state departments of health and from the universities with which Class A medical schools are affiliated.

Of the courses given by departments of health, five are for sanitarians—those conducted in Kansas, Illinois, Ohio, New Mexico and Pennsylvania. In addition, the Virginia state health department offers a correspondence course for teachers; in both Virginia and Minnesota a course is given in the hygiene of maternity and infancy for mothers, and a second course is offered in Pennsylvania, one for persons connected with industries, schools and with civic and religious organizations.

"In no case is tuition charged for the courses conducted by state departments of health," says a summary of the survey. "Mimeographed or printed lessons are distributed in several instances, and in two cases, textbooks are used. Those taking the course are required to answer questions by mail from time to time, in four or five instances in connection with each lesson. The number enrolled varies a great deal, so also does the length of course."

Some Courses for Laymen.
The correspondence courses offered by universities are in five instances conducted by the extension division of the university and in one case by the department of hygiene. One university conducts only one course, two conduct two courses, two four courses, and one conducts seven courses. Most courses appear to be offered primarily for those who are now or intend to be engaged in public health work, although a few courses apparently are for laymen.

"In all cases tuition is charged, textbooks are used and examinations given. Academic credit is granted for all courses, except in one university, where credit is given when the student is enrolled in the school of medicine."

The length of courses varied from 20 to 40 lessons. While the courses offered by universities may have more qualified students than those offered by state departments of health, the number of students enrolled is not large.

The Ohio state department of health has prepared a course, with the assistance of the International Health board, for persons employed in public health work on a full-time or part-time basis. The work requires one year, but no definite time is set for completion. The Kansas state board of health, which also received assistance from the International Health board, established in January, 1923, a correspondence course for sanitarians (mostly interested county health officers) of the mid who enrolled the course was reported in 1924.

The bureau of public health of the department of public welfare of New Mexico organized for city and county health officers a correspondence course in 1923, consisting of 40 lessons given at weekly intervals. The course was taken by 30 persons. The work has not been conducted in a systematic way since 1923. The Virginia state board of health operates two correspondence courses; one for teachers and one for mothers.

Free Courses for Mothers.
The Minnesota state board of health, through its division of child hygiene, conducts a correspondence course in the hygiene of maternity and infancy.

The Pennsylvania department of health, through its division of public health education, has conducted two courses which it designated as correspondence courses.

The University of Chicago maintains a large home study department. Seven courses are given in the department of hygiene and bacteriology. The University of Wisconsin at present offers through its extension division approximately four courses—two for mothers and women generally, one for nurses and one for health officers. The University of Arkansas announces through its general extension divisions, courses in the following subjects: School hygiene, sewerage, water works, and illuminating engineering. The University of Kansas announces through its correspondence division a non-credit course in home health and home nursing, which is taken by many women over the state. The University of Tennessee, through its department of hygiene, offered in January, 1923, a correspondence course in personal and community hygiene.

By MARION R. REAGAN

BERYL SANDS stood outside the dingy little restaurant, looking in at the heavily paneled windows with the absent, vacant stare of one whose mind is preoccupied with melancholy thoughts. People walking along the sidewalks crunched the fresh, dry snow under their heels. Most of them were talking and laughing with the light ease of those who feel at rights with the world. But their chatter only made Beryl more and more conscious of her loneliness. There was not a soul in this whole city she could call her friend, not one. And as for a lover—Beryl winced. Twenty-eight and never a lover! Think of spending all of one's life alone! "Old Maid Sands" it would be. Oh, how terrible life was; how unutterably hard on girls like her. Of course there had been Jack Boulton. He had always rather liked her; taken her home from church parties and so on in the old days when they lived in Alhambra. He might have fallen in love with her if she had encouraged him. He was the only man who had ever understood her at all. Wonder where he was now? With slow, listless steps, Beryl entered the little restaurant. She chose the cleanest looking table in the room. A man was already seated there. She sat down opposite him and began to read the menu card.

"Beryl, by George, if it isn't Beryl! She looked up quickly and recognized the little restaurant. She chose the cleanest looking table in the room. A man was already seated there. She sat down opposite him and began to read the menu card."

Got Mild Intoxicant
From "Peyote" Plant

"Peyote" (pronounced "pay-yo-ty") with accent on second syllable) is the Mexican form of the Aztec "peyotl," meaning a caterpillar. The Aztecs applied "peyote" to a species of cactus which grows in southern Mexico because of the downy growth on the roots. A mild intoxicant was made by the Indians from this plant. Later "peyote" came to be applied to a small gymnocereus which grows in northern Mexico and the southwestern part of the United States. This cactus is found in abundance along the Rio Grande.

The small tops which barely protrude above the ground are often called "mesquite buttons," "mesquite" being another name for peyote. From the dried tops is made a medicine used as a remedy for various ailments. But the chief use of peyote is in certain religious ceremonies. It exhilarates the mind, intensifies the imagination and produces a pleasant dreaminess, without, however, any disagreeable effects later. At least, this is what the authorities report.

The peyote is taken at intervals during the ceremonies, which last throughout the night. Originally all the real men in that region chewed mesquite, in recent years the peyote religion has spread among the Indians in Oklahoma and further north. Some tribes look upon the plant as of divine origin and treat it with veneration. There is no English name which we know of for peyote.—Catholizer Magazine.

LEAVE CHILD LABOR TO STATES.

President Coolidge refuses to support the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, which would give Congress jurisdiction over labor of all persons under 18 years of age.

The child labor amendment advocates will try to force every legislature in session this coming year to submit this question to a vote of the people.

Massachusetts and some other states have buried the amendment under enormous negative majorities, taking position that it is a question for every state to deal with.

Business organizations, some 40 organizations of manufacturers and about 80 state and national organizations of farmers and hundreds of chambers of commerce and bar associations are opposing this twentieth amendment.

The federal child labor amendment would create a new department at Washington with an army of officials traveling all over the United States and telling families of good American citizens how to bring up their children and issuing permits whether boys and girls up to the age of 18 shall be permitted to labor, and under what conditions.

History will probably record that the greatest piece of work ever performed by three men following a great world war was the working-out of the reparations plan by Lega, Advisor Owen D. Young of New York, Businessman Dawes, our new Vice-President and Banker Robinson of Los Angeles.

Their report on reparations due the various nations following four years of world war cataclysm, and then adopted and agreed to at the London Conference, is being lived up to by the various nations and carried into effect.

Germany, owing to the largest bill of reparations of any nation in the world has for three months past paid her regular installments to Great Britain, France and other countries according to schedule, a total of 227,000,000 gold marks, even paying for American Armies of occupation.

One plain young American business man, Seymour Parker Gilbert, Agent-General for reparations payments for Our Country, is administering the entire reparations plan. Was there ever such a demonstration of the superiority of American business ideas to the methods of world politicians, leaders and diplomats?

Germany, owing to the largest bill of reparations of any nation in the world has for three months past paid her regular installments to Great Britain, France and other countries according to schedule, a total of 227,000,000 gold marks, even paying for American Armies of occupation.

Next Saturday is the last day for registering for voting at the special village election. See official notice of election and registration on the last page of this issue of the Avalanche. Many are considered to vote in the township election that are not registered to vote in a village election.

Grayling is officially recorded as having ten inches of snow. The coldest weather is reported for the month of Sunday December 28th, when mercury reached eight below. Christmas morning occurred the first drop in temperature, with five below. December 26th, four below, and 27th three below. At this time there are steady snow flurries with normal seasonal temperature.

Mr. and Mrs. Adler Jorgenson spent Christmas in Detroit with their son Benton and family, who were guests of the E. A. Bowman family.

The Silver Greys of Bay City, who have not met defeat this season and Grayling American Legion team, who also have not lost a game so far, will compete for honors at the High school gymnasium, Monday evening, January 5th. Dance after game.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright and daughter Mary Jane of Lansing spent Christmas with Mrs. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beck. A delightful Christmas celebration was held at the Beck home on Thursday with a sumptuous dinner and Christmas tree. Other guests present were Mrs. A. Scriver of Hemlock, Dr. R. E. Goslow and mother, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Heinzelman. Santa Claus made a spectacular visit during the early hours of the evening.

Alonzo Cullen, who has leased the Manistee house and opened the pool room and soft drink parlor, has subleased one side of the parlor to Hans Niederer to be used as a lunch room.

The latter has installed a steam heating table and good modern restaurant equipment and is able to serve his patrons in a modern way. An electric percolator will assure an excellent beverage at all times in the afternoon and evening. Hans is a good cook and will no doubt be accorded a good patronage.

A county superintendent of a neighboring county asked every teacher at the county institute who took their local paper to hold up their hands, and only four responded. The superintendent expressed great surprise and said: "You don't spend a dollar a year on those papers yet you expect them to print free of charge, notices of all the schools, insert long programs, expect them to advertise you, thus assisting you climb the ladder to better positions and better salaries, without a cent in return to help pay his expenses." Then he related a fact about a pompous, loud-talker who said: "What do you think that inquisitive newspaper man did today? Why, he dunned me for six weeks subscription. And I just took his paper because he was a poor man and I felt sorry for him." Hillsdale Banner.

Supt. and Mrs. John W. Payne of Frederic are spending the holiday vacation in Lansing.

Lionel McClain returned the latter part of the week from Detroit, where he has been employed.

Miss Edna Bobb of Bay City was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bobb over Christmas.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Dunham on December 22. She will be known as Betty.

Miss Blanche Goodale of Lapeer was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Jess Schoonover and family over Xmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown who spent Christmas in Bay City, have gone to Detroit for over New Year's.

Waldemar Olson and family of East Jordan spent Christmas in Grayling, guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Olson.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry H. Pool entertained very informally at dinner at their home on Christmas night, the guests being the nurses of Grayling hospital, Mrs. Squires, county nurse, and Miss Allis.

A lovely dinner was served, the table being adorned with a small Christmas tree on whose branches was a gift for each guest. The affair was a most enjoyable one.

The Bridge Club and their gentlemen enjoyed a fine Christmas dinner Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reagan. The house was extremely attractive with its decorations of lighted red candles and mistletoe, as well as a brightly lighted Christmas tree, which added coal cheer to the party. The evening was spent playing bridge, Mrs. Chas. Trouble and Holger Hanson holding the highest scores.

When the dust is on the counter and the cobwebs on the shelf, and there's no one in the place but your own disheartened self, and your stock is getting shiftnon, and every thing looks stale, and bills enough are coming in to make a banker pale. Oh! here's the time a fellow is a feeling kind of blue, and is puzzled with the thought of the proper thing to do. In such a situation but one remedy applies, if you want to get the customers you've got to advertise.

Miss Eleanor Gorman was hostess to thirteen of her girl friends Tuesday afternoon of last week in honor of her 14th birthday. The girls had a most delightful party.

For which prizes were awarded. A most delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Gorman, a lovely birthday cake gracing the lunch table. It was Eleanor's first birthday party and no doubt will live in her memory as one of her happiest days. Pretty Christmas favors were presented each guest.

The Christmas services at St. Mary's church were largely attended, at the midnight mass every pew being filled. Previous to the mass the Nurses' choir of Mercy Hospital, made the time for the early comers pass in a pleasing manner by rendering a musical program. To most of the selections Miss Beatrice Trudo played the violin accompaniment.

The church altars were beautiful with evergreen boughs and cut flowers and were most attractive. At the midnight service, St. Mary's choir rendered the beautiful hymns for the occasion, and Rev. Fr. Culligan delivered an appropriate sermon. There was a large number of communicants.

Dr. C. J. Hathaway, optometrist of Pontiac, was in the city on professional business Monday and Tuesday of this week. He has many customers in this region using glasses furnished by him, and finds it necessary to make semi-annual trips to Grayling to serve his patrons. For many years Mr. Hathaway was located in Grayling but a few years ago opened offices in Pontiac and is gaining a fine patronage. He recently installed fixtures for his Pontiac office, making it modern in efficiency, comfort and convenience. He says that there are but few optometry offices in Michigan that are equal to his in equipment, and none that are better equipped. He is recognized nationally as authority on many phases of the science of optometry and in recognition of his ability has been recently honored by the Pennsylvania Optometry college by having conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Optometry.

Officer Rewarded for Bravery He's Forgotten

Fargo, N. D. Time rewards although sometimes long in coming, inevitably find their way home, is proved by the experience of Lieut. Col. F. M. Steele of Fargo, who has just received a citation for gallantry in action in the Spanish-American war. He says the incident is so far in the past that he cannot recall it.

For gallantry in action against the Spanish forces at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898, is the only explanation the citation gives. General Stroger was then first lieutenant. First company, 1st U. S. A. The citation entitles him to wear "one silver citation star on the ribbon of your Spanish campaign medal or service ribbon pertinent thereto."

Happy New Year!

Once more we pass another milestone in the history of the world! Once more another year of progress in civilization! And once more we stand on the threshold of another year!

What 1925 will bring forth none of us can foretell. Such vision is not within our province. Every indication points to the fact that the work of reconstruction will proceed—go on with a determination, know only to America.

We face the next 365 days with an optimism that is certain to bring us to the coveted goal—an opportunity that will eventually make America a better and happier nation.

Let us remember that our goal can only be reached through co-operation, a unity of purpose and a feeling of brotherly love.

To you—our friends—we extend the greetings of the season!

Greetings!

SALUTATIONS! The year 1924 has been good to us—and let our fervent wish be that 1925 will find us at peace with the world and ourselves.

Blessed with almost everything the good Providence could give us, far removed from the strife and tribulations of the other side of the world, we are indeed thankful that the opening of the new year finds us in such an enviable position.

And 1925 dawns with the greatest of hope—that hope for continued prosperity, a greater unity of purpose and a better feeling of brotherly love.

Once more we extend to you a happy and healthy New Year.

EX-KAISER IS PEEVED AT HIS ELDEST SON

Activity in Political Circles Annoys Father.

Down—Life at the Chateau of Bonn has become, particularly during the last few months, extremely uninteresting.

Every day almost sees the arrival of one automobile bringing the prince and princess, former ministers and generals who had served under the old monarchial regime in Germany.

Some of the visitors leave after a day or two, but others prolong their stay, residing for the time being in expensive "pensions" where they make an ostentatious display of their war decorations, and pay almost daily visits in full dress uniform to the ex-kaiser.

The former emperor appears to be doing everything possible to entertain and amuse to himself the sympathies of all German monarchist and military droops. His constant, harmless, who-burns-with-the-desire-and-hope of one day becoming emperor of Germany, seconds their husband in these efforts to the most perfect manner, and with all the grace at his command, by holding grand receptions and entertainments.

All these activities have for their principal object, according to what is related in the best-informed quarters, to counteract similar ambitious projects entertained by the former crown prince. It is even said that the rivalry between father and son has developed recently into a state of latent warfare, pursued indirectly on both sides.

The activity displayed since his return to Germany by the former crown prince in political circles, especially among the nationalists and monarchists and the younger generation of militarists, rumors of which reach the ex-kaiser from Berlin, serve to render the latter furious against his son. The prince, on his side, is said to show him little of either respect or admiration for the personages of the old regime and its time-honored traditions.

The ex-crown prince would seem to be desirous of breaking definitely with the ideas and personages of the past, and even to be willing to find himself at the head of a regime purely democratic, provided that it was at the same time nationalist. The former emperor, on the contrary, clings desperately to the ideas and personages of the past, and shows himself a bitter and unchangeable enemy to all democratic sentiments.

DAWES PLAN IN EFFECT

Europe on the Way to Economic Recovery—British Labor Government Overthrown—Republicans Win Great Victory in American Election—Flight of Army Planes Around World.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Many events of great moment marked the year 1924. First of these in importance undoubtedly was the formulation, adoption and putting into operation of the Dawes plan for the payment of German reparations and indirectly the financial and economic regeneration of that country and Europe generally. The success of this scheme means much for the entire civilized world. Having been devised mainly by Americans, it adds to the prestige of America.

Wars were few and not especially important internationally. The outstanding ones were the civil war for the control of the government of China, the attempt of Spain to conquer the rebellious tribesmen of Morocco, the suppression of a rebellion in Mexico and a long drawn-out revolutionary movement in Brazil. There were also several of the always-to-be-expected internecine conflicts in Central America. On the whole Mars had rather an idle year. For a time the nationalists talked of war between the United States and Japan over the Japanese exclusion clause in the new American immigration law, but the crisis was passed safely for the time at least.

Great Britain experienced the novelty of being under a Labor government which was fairly successful until it got tangled up with the Russian soviets, whereupon it was ousted, the Conservatives winning the parliamentary elections by large majorities. Stanley Baldwin again became prime minister. During the first quarter of the year the soviet government of Russia won recognition from almost every important country except the United States, but the soviet leaders continued to recede from their Bolshevik principles. Socialists continued the government of France and Herriot became premier. President Mustapha Kemal of Turkey and Dictator Mussolini of Italy were subjected to severe attacks from political opponents and were forced to more liberal attitudes.

In the United States the biggest event of the year was the national election, together with the sensational Democratic convention which resulted in the nomination of John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, and the independent candidacy of Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler on a radical platform. Despite the oil reserve scandal that had laid the Republican administration open to attack, the voters of the land by a plurality of about 100,000, decided that Calvin Coolidge should continue in the presidential office with Charles G. Dawes as vice president. During the long months of the campaign business in the United States had languished, but immediately after the election it revived rapidly, and at the same time there began a considerable boom in securities on the stock exchanges. Until autumn American agriculture was in the dumps, and statesmen spent much time trying to devise measures to relieve it, but this relief, for all its branches except live stock raising, came naturally with substantial rises in the prices of grains and other produce.

The spectacular event of 1924 was the successful flight of three American army airplanes around the globe. Not long after their return the huge dirigible ZR-3, built by Germany as reparations for the United States, made a safe trip across the Atlantic.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

When the year began the matter of German reparations was still foremost among the problems awaiting settlement. The commission of experts appointed by the reparations commission and headed by Gen. Charles G. Dawes of America began its work January 14 with the examination of Germany's capacity to pay. It functioned rapidly and with precision, formulated what has been known as the Dawes plan, and submitted its report on April 9. Two days later this was accepted by the reparations commission, and on April 15 it was approved by the German and British governments. Belgium, Italy and Japan accepted it on April 20, but France, mainly for political reasons, withheld approval for the time being. Meanwhile American bankers established unlimited credit facilities for the new German gold re-discount bank and J. P. Morgan promised American banks would raise half of the $200,000,000 loan to Germany provided for in the Dawes plan. In June France permitted 210,000 deportees to return to the Ruhr, and President Ebert pardoned Germans convicted of helping the French in the occupied regions. On July 15, Owen D. Young of San Francisco accepted the position of fiscal agent of the Dawes plan, and the same day the allied premiers met in London to discuss the operation of the scheme. Later they invited Germany to send a delegation, and the conference resulted in complete agreement. France promised to evacuate the Ruhr within a year, and almost immediately began to get her military and civil forces out of the region. The London agreement was ratified by the parliaments, the German reichstag passed the bill necessary for the operation of the plan, and the pact was formally signed on August 30. It was the only scheme yet forward upon which the warring nations could agree, and its adoption marked the world over as the beginning of the reparation of Europe from the disastrous effects of the war. Germany began making payments under the Dawes plan on September 2. Next day Seymour Parker Gilbert, young American financial expert, was appointed agent general of reparations, and on October 10 the big loan to Germany was offered to the world. It was promptly heavily oversubscribed in most countries. German industry responded instantly and the smooth and efficient operation of the Dawes plan seemed assured.

Several attempts were made during the year to forward the further reduction of armaments by agreement, but nothing definite was accomplished until September, when Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain submitted to the League of Nations his plan for an international agreement for security, arbitration and disarmament. The discussion was heated, and Japan refused to adhere because the plan prohibited wars based on internal policies of nations. Her delegates did not conceal the fact that they were referring especially to the Japanese exclusion clause of the American immigration law, which already had caused protests from Tokyo and boycotts and threats against Americans in Japan. They insisted the agreement must provide that any nation might ask the league to arbitrate internal affairs of any other nation, and the league assembly yielded to them and adopted the protocol with such amendment. Assent of the legislative bodies of all member nations of course was requisite, and as time went on it became evident this could not be obtained. The British parliament, it was believed, was almost certain not to agree since Canada, Australia and New Zealand were bitterly opposed.

In October Great Britain and Turkey were at swords' points over the old Mosul oil fields dispute, but they submitted the matter to the League of Nations council, which ordered the status quo be maintained for the present.

Another international conference opened in Geneva in November for the purpose of devising some way of regulating the traffic in opium. America was represented by Congressman Porter of Pennsylvania, and others, and they presented a plan which may ultimately operate to suppress the opium evil, though it was fought by India and other nations that profit from the poppy and its product.

Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army and governor general of the Sudan, was ousted by nationalist nationalists in November. The British government, swiftly moving warships and troops to strategic positions, demanded an apology, indemnity of $2,300,000, punishment of the assassins, and most important concessions concerning the Sudan and the great irrigation project there. Premier Zogoloff Pasha resigned and Ziwari, his successor, yielded to all the demands. The root of the trouble was the control of the Sudan, which was claimed by both nations.

Among the more important treaties signed during the year were the Anglo-American liquor search-and-seizure treaty, a treaty of friendship between Italy and Yugoslavia, an American-Canadian treaty designed to suppress smuggling of liquor and narcotics, one providing for the evacuation of Santo Domingo by the United States military forces, and a commercial treaty between Austria and Czechoslovakia. The Labor government of Britain negotiated trade and general treaties with soviet Russia, but these were rejected by the Conservatives when they came into power.

Great Britain's war debt to the United States was funded on a basis generally satisfactory, and late in the year France began negotiations to fund her debt to us. The British government at once announced that if France or any other nation that was in debt to Britain paid the United States, she would expect to receive payment from them in proportion. This checked the proceedings for the time. Poland already had advanced for the funding of her American debt.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

With the aid of the Liberals in parliament, the Labor government of Great Britain functioned through most of the year. It took office on January 22 with Ramsay MacDonald as prime minister. Its policies were fairly moderate, but several of its bills were beaten, notably those for the aid of the poor and for the nationalization of mines. It did not resign because no party then had a majority in parliament. However, the people rebelled against the treaties with soviet Russia which MacDonald negotiated, and on October 8 the house of commons refused him a vote of confidence. Parliament was at once prorogued and the general election set for October 20. At the polls the Conservatives won an overwhelming victory, getting 413 of the 615 seats in the house. The Liberal party seemed almost wiped out and the Laborites suffered heavy losses. Stanley Baldwin was selected to be prime minister again and on November 6 his government took office. To the great relief of France, Austen Chamberlain was made foreign secretary instead of Lord Curzon. Winston Churchill, a free trader and determined foe of socialism, was named chancellor of the exchequer. A sensational episode of the campaign was the publishing of the "Zinoviev letter," purporting to be directions from the head of the Third Internationale to English communists to prepare for revolution. It was repudiated by the soviet government as an "impudent forgery" and an apology was demanded. MacDonald said he believed it authentic and so did the Baldwin government. But a little later some monarchists were arrested in Berlin on the charge of forging and sending out this and other similar documents for the purpose of stirring up trouble.

England's most serious trouble internally continued to be unemployment. This increased through the year, and so, unfortunately, did the cost of living. In February there was a great dockers' strike which threatened to cut off most of the country's food supplies. But through the efforts of MacDonald and his colleagues it was soon settled.

France changed her government twice. Premier Poincare was not in sympathy with the movement to restore friendly relations with Germany, and on June 1 he resigned. Francois-Marsal formed a ministry which lasted only a few days, and then President Millerand also gave up his office. The Radical Socialists—who are not so radical there as in some countries—took charge and made Edouard Herriot premier, after Gaston Doumergue had been elected President. On September 30 France turned out a balanced budget for the first time in ten years.

Austria in November lost the invaluable services of her chancellor, Mr. Seipel, who resigned because of a general railway strike for higher wages and other unsatisfactory conditions. Due largely to the greedy profiteers of Vienna, he was succeeded by Rudolph Ramek. At one time or another during the year the governments of Japan, Belgium, Albania, South Africa, Yugoslavia, Finland and Portugal also changed hands. Greece went further than that. Venizelos formed a ministry in January, was succeeded by Karandaris in February, and he was followed by Papanastasiou in March. On March 25 the assembly, ignoring the protests of Great Britain, voted to depose the Gluckovich dynasty and establish a republic, subject to a plebiscite. The people voted in favor of the republic on April 13, and the royal family went into exile. Nicolai Lenin, the master mind of soviet Russia, who had been incapacitated for a long time, died on January 21 and Alexis I. Rykov was chosen to succeed him as premier. The funeral of Lenin was an extraordinary demonstration and his tomb has become the national shrine. Minister of War Trotsky seems to be at odds with the other big men of the government, and it was reported that he was soon to be forced out of office.

March 3 to depose the caliph and abolish the caliphate and best day the caliph left for Switzerland. President Mustafa Kemal worked hard for the prosperity of his country, but his dictatorial methods brought about a powerful combination of his opponents that gave him trouble. In November this group forced the resignation of Premier Ismet Pasha, the President's right-hand man, he was succeeded by Fethi Bey.

Arabia's radical religionists, the Mahdists, under Ibn Saud, revolted against the rule of King Hussein of the Hedjaz and that monarch abdicated on October 3 at the demand of the citizens of Mecca and Jeddah. Emir Ali, his son, was put on the throne, but he had no better success than his father, for in the middle of October Wahabites accepted Mecca.

Germany's reichstag was dissolved March 13 and a hot campaign ensued. The Nationalists planning to restore the monarchy. In the elections the Social Democrats easily won. The cabinet of Chancellor Marx resigned May 27, but he was retained in office. Again in October the reichstag was organized, the military dictatorship was thrown out, and the Reichstag elected. New elections were held December 7. On November 7 the German budget was balanced for the first time since the war. The reichstag elections came on December 7 and the three parties supporting the republic and the Dawes plan won the most seats. However, Chancellor Marx found it so difficult to form a new cabinet that he and his ministers resigned on December 15, carrying on until their successors could be chosen.

The Fascists won the Italian elections on April 6, but the tide against Benito Mussolini steadily. Sir Matteo, a Socialist deputy, was kidnapped and murdered by Fascist in June and Premier Mussolini faced a crisis which he survived only by the most energetic action. He dissolved the national militia and reorganized his government, and some of his prominent supporters were ousted. His opponents were kept fairly quiet until November, when, confronted by another attack in parliament, Mussolini frankly admitted the faults of the Fascists and promised to punish their excesses and to curb their intemperances, beginning with himself.

China's civil war for 1924 broke out September 3 in the Shanghai region between the armies of Chekiang and Kiangsu provinces, the former being backed by Gen. Wu Peifu, military chief of the Peking government, and the latter having the moral support of Marshal Chang Tsao-lin of Manchuria. The Chekiang troops were victorious after a long campaign, but meanwhile Chekiang had moved on Peking and defeated his old enemy Wu, partly through the treachery of the latter's chief general, Feng Yuxiang. President Tsao Kuo resigned, Feng took possession of Peking, but was practically eliminated by Chang, and the Manchurian made Tuan Chih-chang head of a provisional government.

On this side of the Atlantic there was the long drawn-out rebellion in the state of Rio do Sul, Brazil, the chief effect of which elsewhere was the increase in the price of coffee; and, early in the year, an attempted revolution in Mexico which caused the federal government a lot of trouble. Gen. Plutarco Calles was elected President of Mexico and was inaugurated on December 1. Gonzales Gordova was elected President of Ecuador, Horacio Vazquez of Santo Domingo, Carlos Solozano of Nicaragua, and Gerardo Machado of Cuba. There was a rebellion in Honduras in the spring that was ended through the intervention of the United States, and a treaty of peace by the Central American nations was signed. In Chile a military group came to the fore and caused President Alessandri to resign. However, the senate refused his resignation and gave him six months' leave in Europe.

Politics consumed a vast amount of time and energy in the United States, as is the case every four years. There was little doubt from the first that the Republicans would nominate President Coolidge to succeed himself. Both Senator Hiram Johnson and Senator Robert M. La Follette were candidates in the preferential primary states, but the former won almost no delegates, and the latter only those from Wisconsin. The convention was held in Cleveland, opening on June 10 with Frank W. Mondell as chairman. The Wisconsin delegation presented La Follette's substitute platform, which had no support outside that delegation, and it also cast its vote for the senator. Coolidge was nominated on the first ballot, the vote being: Coolidge, 1,063; La Follette, 84; Johnson, 10. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois was nominated for vice president, but declined and the place was given to Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago.

The Democrats convened in New York on June 24 and did not complete their work until the early morning of July 10—the most protracted national convention in the history of American politics. Nearly a score of names were presented for the presidential nomination, with William G. McAdoo and Gov. Al Smith of New York leading. The former was credited with support from the Ku Klux Klan and the latter is a Roman Catholic, therefore the religious issue became deplorably prominent. The committee on resolutions struggled over two points especially—whether or not the Klan should be denounced by name and whether or not the party should declare itself definitely in favor of American membership in the League of Nations. Both questions went before the convention in minority reports and many fiery speeches were made. The delegates decided not to name the Klan and not to declare for league membership. Balloting for a presidential nominee began June 30 and it was immediately apparent that there was a deadlock, for neither McAdoo nor Smith would give way unless the other would do the same. Day after day the voting went on, most of the other aspirants dropping out one by one. As the one hundredth ballot drew near the vote for John W. Davis began to grow. On the one hundred and third ballot the break came and Davis obtained a majority. The nomination was then made unanimous. Out of a dozen names put up for the vice presidency, Mr. Davis selected that of Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska and brother of William J., who he nominated.

While this was going on Senator La Follette became the candidate of a third party that called itself the Progressive party. He was endorsed by the chiefs of the Federation of Labor, and apparently against his will, by the Socialist party. Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana was given second place on the ticket. There were several other candidates, as usual, who cut no figure in the results. The evident plan of the La Follette following was to cause a deadlock in the electoral college and throw the election into congress.

When the votes of the nation were counted on the night of November 4 it was found that Coolidge had carried 35 states with 382 votes in the electoral college; Davis had carried 12 states, all in the "Solid South," with 136 electoral votes, and La Follette had won only the 13 electoral votes of Wisconsin. Coolidge's popular plurality was nearly 10,000,000. The Republicans also won complete control of the next congress.

Among the interesting results of the day was the election of two women as governors of states. They are Mrs. Miriam Ferguson of Texas and Mrs. Nellie T. Ross of Wyoming. At Smith gave an impressive demonstration of his popularity by overcoming a huge Republican plurality in New York state and defeating Theodore Roosevelt Jr. for the governorship.

Scandal resulting from the leasing of naval oil reserve lands furnished material for bitter attacks on the administration and for long investigations by senatorial committees. Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, was badly involved, and others were smothered. Secretary of the Navy Denby resigned under pressure. President Coolidge and congress took steps to clear the guilty to justice and to restore the reserves. Court proceedings are still going on. Congress gave considerable time to a bill for tax reduction and passed a measure that included many features urged by the Democrats and inspired Republicans. Soldiers' bonus bill also was passed. The President vetoed it, but both house and senate override the veto. An immigration bill before congress contained a clause that would exclude the Japanese. The ambassador from Tokyo protested against this, and so congress passed the measure was quickly passed and signed by the President.

Four airplanes manned by eight army pilots started on a flight around the world from Santa Monica, Cal., on March 17. In the Alaska islands the commander, Major Martin, and his plane came to grief and the other planes continued the flight. With many vicissitudes and some exciting experiences the flyers made their way to Japan, China, India, and so on through Europe to Iceland, where another plane was wrecked. The two remaining planes successfully flew to Greenland and thence home. Aviators of several other nations attempted the same feat, but all failed.

Curtis D. Wilbur of California became secretary of the navy on March 14 when Mr. Denby retired. Attorney General Daugherty resigned March 23 at the request of the President because his official actions were assailed and under investigation. He was succeeded by Harlan Fiske Stone of New York. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace died October 25 and Howard Gore was named to fill the post until March 4.

Further reduction of armaments, adherence to the permanent court of international justice, against joining the League of Nations and against cancellation of war debts owed the United States by other nations.

The senate on December 11 passed the house bill appropriating $140,000,000 for the rehabilitation of the navy. The annual reports of the secretaries of war and the navy and of several commissions, stressed the steady decline in our defenses on land and sea and in the air, but the President indicated that he was not in sympathy with the demands for huge sums to be expended on armament. The house passed the interior department appropriation bill carrying a total of $238,000,000.

INDUSTRIAL AND LABOR

Labor in the United States had a prosperous and in general a quiet year. There was not one general strike; wages maintained their high level and in many instances were increased. The New York Central railway company increased the pay of 15,000 employees on January 22. Chicago teamsters won an increase in February by a short strike, and so did several other local unions later. Wages of various classes of railway employees were raised during the year by the federal board. Only the textile workers of Maine suffered a reduction, in November. Silk workers of Paterson, N. J., went on strike and so did the garment workers of both New York and Chicago.

The American Federation of Labor held its convention in El Paso, Texas. Communism and the labor party movement were again squelched, and Samuel Gompers was re-elected president. He and many of the delegates went to Mexico City for the convention of the Pan-American Labor Federation. Mr. Gompers was elected president of that body. While there he suddenly fell ill and was hurriedly brought back to San Antonio, where he died on December 13.

Of strikes in other countries the most important were those of the dockers in England, postal employees of Canada in June, Silesian factory workers in July and plantation workers of Hawaii in September. There was also a general strike of union labor in Cuba in February.

In July the federal trade commission ordered all steel companies to abandon the "Pittsburgh plus" system, which was said to work injustice to the Middle West. The commission also accused the Aluminum Company of America of questionable practices. On October 30 when the Supreme court of the United States met that federal courts must grant jury trials in contempt cases growing out of labor disputes.

Congress voted in favor of an amendment to the Constitution that would put an end to child labor. In November the National Grange went on record as opposed to this amendment.

DISASTERS

While there was in 1924 no such terrific disaster as the Japanese earthquake of the previous year, the list of quakes, conflagrations, mine explosions, tornadoes and other visitations was long and the loss of life was heavy. The Red Cross was kept busy throughout the year. The worst of these occurrences were as follows: January 3, explosion in starch factory in Pekin, 30 killed; January 10, British submarine with crew of 43 sunk in collision; January 15 and 16, severe earthquakes in Japan, India and Colombia; January 20, coal mine explosion at Shanktown, Pa., 40 killed; February 5, 32 killed when pond broke through into iron mine near Crosby, Minn.; March 1, explosion of TNT at Nixon, N. J., killed 18; March 4, San Jose, Costa Rica, half wrecked by quake; March 8, mine explosion at Castle Gate, Utah, killed 175; March 20, landslide near Amthil, Italy, killed 100; April 28, mine explosion at Wheeling, W. Va., killed 111; April 30, destructive and fatal tornadoes in Southern states; May 27, tornadoes in South killed 45; May 28, Bucharest arsenal blew up with great loss of life; May 31, 22 inmates of defective girls' school in California burned to death; June 12, turret explosion on battleship Mississippi killed 38; June 28, tornado killed 150 and did vast damage at Lorain, Ohio; in August, thousands killed in floods in China and Formosa, and 80 lives lost in Virginia islands hurricane; September 16, mine explosion at Shilet, Wyo., killed 40; September 21, storms in Wisconsin fatal to 58; October 20, 14 killed by explosion on U. S. Trenton; November 12, hundreds of lives lost in earthquakes in Java; November 14 and 15, destructive conflagrations in Jersey City, N. J.

CARE FOR ORPHANS AND DISABLED MEN

The American Legion will raise a fund of $5,000,000 or more for orphaned children of the World War and indigent and disabled former service men in a nation-wide campaign to be launched soon, it was announced at national headquarters of the Legion recently. President Coolidge, at the request of National Commander James A. Drain of the Legion, accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Legion's national committee to raise the fund. The endowment fund program was given authorization by the sixth national convention of the Legion at St. Paul, pending approval of the plan by the finance committee, which was given at a meeting of the committee at national headquarters.

The urgent need of raising the fund immediately was pointed out by Mark T. McKee, Detroit, Mich., who is a member of the Legion's child welfare committee. He declared that the existing facilities of the Legion for caring for the orphaned and helpless children of former service men who were killed or died as a result of their war service are overcrowded. At this time the Legion maintains a children's billet at Otter Lake, Mich., and has one under construction at Independence, Kans.

"There are 5,000 children of dead World War veterans who need care right now," Mr. McKee said, "out of a total of 35,000 war widows. As time goes on there will be more. These are veterans' brain figures. Just the other day a man left four children at the veterans' bureau, children of a deceased war veteran, with a request that they be cared for. The bureau turned the children over to us. Somehow we will provide for them, yet our present facilities will stand for no expansion."

In referring to the proposed fund, Commander Drain declared: "The Legion's endowment fund campaign will be a success. We will raise more than the set amount and the campaign will have a greatly beneficial effect upon the members of the Legion and increase our membership for the coming year to a million members. We must look close to home and see the great underlying misery caused by the great conflict. We must help the disabled man. He is our first obligation and he needs us now. The American Legion must keep faith with its fallen comrades by seeing that the helpless children are not deprived of the opportunities that are rightfully theirs, because their fathers were killed fighting for their country. Blind up the wounds of the disabled and care for the widows and orphans must be our slogan."

The Legion will petition congress to make a technical change in the recently passed adjusted compensation act to the effect that former service persons may allot their compensation to patriotic organizations chartered by congress, the money to be used for child welfare and disabled veteran care. The Legion would use such a fund toward their endowment program. Congress sanctions the proposal, Legion officials declared.

Trophies Not Removed From School Grounds

When the local school board proposed that national war trophies be removed from the city of Montclair, N. J., in 1920, the school board was met by a strong objection to the proposal to city commissioners, declaring: "These trophies were presented to Montclair in memory of 69 Montclair men who fell on the battlefields of France; they are a lesson in patriotism to the school children who use them daily. If these trophies are removed, remove the busts of Washington and Lincoln from the schools and take down the flag that waves above them." The commission ordered the trophies left on the school grounds.

Proper Use and Honor to Flag to Be Urged

Defenders of the flag in '34 and '17 will introduce a bill in the next session of the legislature of Connecticut making compulsory the teaching of the proper use and respect of that flag. It was revealed when representatives from both the American Legion post and the U. S. A. post met and framed a bill to that effect. A resolution concerning the bill was passed at the last state convention of the Legion, which extended an invitation to their honorable comrades to include their sentiments in the flag etiquette legislation.

Aiding Foreigners

Aiding foreigners to study for citizenship is one of the activities of the Golden Gate post of the American Legion in San Francisco, Cal. "Our method is simple and direct," said Miss Myrtle R. Saylor, in charge of the activity. "We get a list of prospective citizens from the naturalization bureau, look them up, and send them to the nearest place where English and other naturalization requirements are taught."

The Awakening

"How long have you known your husband?" inquired the new neighbor. "We've been back from our honeymoon two weeks," replied Mrs. Nuttle in a bitter burst of confidence. "American Legion Weekly."

Publ.—Do you think you'll ever forget the big war? "Dibs—No! While they put me in camp, buddy!—American Legion Weekly."

FARM BUREAU NOTES
R. D. BAILEY
County Agriculture Agent

We clip the following from the Farm Bureau notes written by County Agent A. Lytle in the Gaylord Herald of December 18th, 1924. I can see Mr. Townsend's barn from my home Groveland Farm, on the edge of the city of Gaylord.

Taxes Paid From Poultry Profits.
Can you pay your taxes this fall from your poultry flock profits? Are you getting eggs to eat, and to market at five cents each? Are you getting as many as one egg each day for every two hens in the flock? Yes! It can't be done. Echo answers echo. But are you sure of it?

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Townsend are paying their taxes with poultry profits. Wouldn't you like to do the same thing? Well you can if you want to bad enough to make the effort. Here's how the Townsends are turning the trick:

A Michigan type poultry house with a capacity for 100 hens, and filled to capacity, is where this egg manufacturing business is carried on. While that particular type of house is not an absolute essential to successful winter egg production, nevertheless it has its advantages, adequate room, plenty of ventilation and warmth.

To feed these 100 hens costs about 60 cents per day, except for the skim milk, and consists of the following:

Dry mash mixture of 100 pounds each of bran, middlings, ground oats, corn meal plus forty pounds of meat scrap and four pounds of salt. These pullets, hatched May 15th last, eat about 12 pounds of the mixture per day, being kept in a hopper so they can eat what they want and when they want it.

Grain is fed this flock, being made up of equal parts of whole wheat and whole oats, mixed together. Three pounds of this mixture are fed in the litter of straw in the morning. This litter is four inches deep and the turning the grain out of it gives the pullets exercise.

At night three more pounds of the wheat and oats mixture are fed and six pounds of cracked corn. This makes 12 pounds of grain for the 100 hens, and they eat just about 12 pounds of the dry mash in addition.

Oyster shell, grit, a dust bath, warmed water, a head small cabbage per day and all the alfalfa leaves they can eat make up the balance of the ration, excepting the curd from 12 quarts of skim milk each day. The cost, as stated above, is 60 cents per day for 100 hens for feed, not counting the milk curd.

The coop is cleaned thoroughly once per week, the litter being changed. Every two weeks should ordinarily be plenty if the floors don't get damp. Cold footed chickens don't lay well, so keep them dry and they will keep warm. Moist litter and damp floors make for cold feet.

One hour per day, as an average for the week, does all the work required in looking after this flock, including the cleaning.

These methods of caring for poultry costs a lot of money, and here is what this flock is doing right now. They are averaging 35 eggs per day, laid 50 one day, and there are 15 that have not yet come into production. Figuring the production at three and half dozen per day (three less than actual production) and the selling price at 60 cents per dozen which they are getting locally, without peddling, and you have one dozen eggs per day and all the alfalfa leaves they can eat. This leaves two and one half dozen eggs per day to pay for the one hour's labor, the skim milk that would be otherwise wasted entirely this winter, and to pay the taxes with.

Two and one half dozen eggs at 60 cents per dozen totals $1.50 in cash. This after paying the feed cost. This makes $45.00 per month and $135.00 for three months. Will that amount of money pay your taxes? Will your flock of poultry bring you in that much money all winter? Is there any reason why they can't provided you get a good staff and take care of it? Have you tried it, all the way thru? A profitable poultry flock offers one of the surest sources of income any Otsego county farmer has.

The opportunity awaits any and all that want to take advantage of it. Gaylord is almost eggless and demands locally 200 dozens per week. Can you help supply this market and help yourself to save some tax money?

RIVERVIEW NEWS.

Wishing all a Happy New Year. Miss Mary Slater left for Traverse City Friday.

CONTENTMENT, Prosperity, Tranquillity—to we Americans how deep a significance these blessings must have when the unfortunate visitations of 1924 upon other nations are brought to mind.

May Dame Fortune continue to smile upon us throughout the coming year that we may be able to lend a heart and a hand toward transmitting "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men" around the world.

And to you home-folks particularly may we convey most heartily our wishes for "A Happy and Prosperous 1925" to which the firms below join us in subscribing on this New Year's Day.

THIRTEEN BELOW IN CHICAGO

Live Stock Suffering From Snow and Sleet in Western States—Trains Late

Chicago—The middle-west, far northwest and parts of the south and California, last Sunday were experiencing the coldest weather in 25 years. Utah reports zero and Colorado has warmed up to an average of 3 above, except in the mountains and on the plains, where zero weather still prevailed.

Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin have not yet felt the rise in temperature. Iowa points report 25 below with ice in the rivers—10 inches thick.

Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and adjacent territory continue cold. Central Illinois points report 18 degrees below zero. Northern Indiana has 25 below and a blizzard.

The cold crossed the Ohio river and was felt as far south as Louisiana and northern Florida. Memphis reported five degrees above zero, which is fairly cool for the sunny south.

In New York City 12 above—zero was reported, but upper New York state and the New England states, continued very cold.

In the western states many trains run late and county roads were impassable. Livestock suffered because of the sleet and snow covering every form of vegetation. Considerable concern is felt for winter wheat, which is smothering under the heavy blanket of sleet and tractors are being used to break this crust.

Chicago had the coldest day in 25 years with an official record of 13 below zero in the city and from 18 to 20 below in the suburbs. Six deaths and more than 300 fires with property damage exceeding $250,000 were attributed to the cold wave.

Marquette, Mich., reported a temperature of 11 degrees below zero and Humbolt, Mich., reported 30 degrees below.

SAGINAW MEN DIE IN AUTO CRASH

D. M. Waddell and Dr. Glass Meet Fate While Rushing For Train.

Detroit—David M. Waddell, 34, vice president of the Waddell, Wilcox & Ryman Realty company, and Dr. Percy Glass, 45, a prominent dentist of Saginaw, Mich., were killed instantly last week when an automobile they occupied skidded into a pole near here.

The men were returning to Detroit from Mr. Waddell's home, where they had gone to obtain Mr. Waddell's baggage preparatory to his leaving for New York City. The men had made a stop at the State Fair Coliseum, which is to be the scene of Moslem Temple's Mid-Winter Circus, for a brief inspection, and were hurrying for the train on which Mr. Waddell and others were going to New York.

As the car skidded from the turn, was chairman of the circus committee, way it struck a tree, tearing away the entire right side of the machine and part of the roof.

FOUND GUILTY IN POISON PLOT

Hight Given Life Term, Mrs. Sweetin 35 Years for Slaying Husband

Mount Vernon, Ill.—Lawrence Hight and Elsie Sweetin, the woman he had loved, were found guilty and have been sentenced for the murder of Wilford Sweetin. Hight was given life imprisonment, while Mrs. Sweetin was given 35 years in the penitentiary.

The state charged that Elsie Sweetin and Lawrence Hight, while he was pastor in the church of Ina, Ill., fell madly in love and entered into an agreement that she would poison her husband, and he his wife, Anna, an agreement which was carried out.

Sweetin died of arsenic poisoning on July 28, after his wife is alleged to have given him three doses of it over a period of six days. Mrs. Hight died September 12, and after her death came the investigation fostered by months of village gossip about the relations of Elsie with her preacher.

FREIGHTER ICELOCKED SIX DAYS

F. B. Squire "Frozen In" 18 Miles Above Detroit

Detroit—A stormy voyage across Lake Superior from Port William, Ont., to Sault Ste. Marie, loaded with 298,000 bushels of wheat, hemmed in by snowstorms and returned by heavy ice and temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero; 36 hours in crossing Lake Huron through a blinding storm, their ship tilted 30 degrees by the ice that formed from sprays across its decks, and locked in the ice of Lake St. Clair for six days, ration stores depleted to crackers and cocoa, were some of the hardships experienced by the crew of the freighter F. B. Squire, ice-locked 18 miles above Detroit, and finally released by icecrushers Sunday.
